

Terry Fairbanks, MD MS

Rollin J “Terry” Fairbanks, MD MS is the director of the National Center for Human Factors in Healthcare in Washington DC, director of MedStar Health’s Simulation Training & Education Lab (SiTEL), Attending emergency physician at the MedStar Washington Hospital Center emergency department, Associate Professor of Emergency Medicine at Georgetown University, and Adjunct Associate Professor of Industrial and Systems Engineering at the University at Buffalo. Dr. Fairbanks is a human factors/safety engineer, board certified emergency physician, former pilot, and former paramedic and EMS Medical Director who applies the science of safety to medical systems. He is a graduate of and current faculty member for the HRET/AHA Patient Safety Leadership Fellowship. Dr. Fairbanks’ work is funded by the NIH, AHRQ, ONC, industry, and several foundations, he has authored more than 75 publications on healthcare safety, and is an influential national and international speaker. See Dr. Fairbanks’ full bio on www.MedicalHumanFactors.net and follow him on twitter @TerryFairbanks.